Suggest Dredging Outlet To Lake

ANNUAL CONFERENCE of Canadian Fire Chiefs in Vancouver Sept. 19-22 will study safety for both public and firemen. Rising toll of accidents to firemen concerns officials. Checking themselves out in two different types of smoke masks are firemen Peter Starbuck (right) in a regular smoke mask and David Hudson in a self-contained oxygen breathing apparatus

Could Be Winter Works Project; Halmrast Tours Flooded District

Dredging the outlet to Lac la Biche, a job that would require a quarter of a million dollars to start, is a possible solution to stopping the lake's rising waters. This, and other possibilities, were being investigated this week by Hon. L. C. Halmrast, minister of agriculture, and Frank Grindley, director of water resources, who toured the flood-stricken Lac la Biche district.

The idea appeals to Michael Maccagno, mayor of Lac la Biche, who suggests that this operation could be tackled under the winter works project. Lac la Biche river, which doesn't freeze during the winter, could be worked at the outlet where the flow of water has been slow.

The visit of Mr. Halmrast and his assistant will also help determine the kind of provincial aid the government would be willing to give the area.

The main concern would be providing protection for the town's waterworks plant. This has already been protected by makeshift dikes, but the waterlevel of the lake is expected to rise another foot or 18 inches and it could cause serious damage to the waterworks.

The government also may ask the Canadian army to build a Bailey bridge across the Owl River, north of Lac la Biche, where an existing bridge has been condemned.

17 STUDENTS ISOLATED

Mayor Michael Maccagno of Lac la Biche conferred with Mr. Halmrast Monday and requested that the army be called in to build the bridge. Until a new bridge is built across the Owl River, 17 children living in the area north of Lac la Biche will be unable to attend school.

The existing bridge was condemned by engineers after high water in the Owl River began eating away at the approaches. At last reports the water in the swollen river was within inches of the bridge deck.

The water resources branch has a weedcutter clearing weeds and debris from the mouth of the La Biche River to increase the flow.

Meanwhile, highways department crews are busy re-routing school van roads which were flooded, and raising the grade of Highway 46 along the south shore of the lake.

THE Homemaker

By BERTHA M. McCUTCHEON

Here are some general suggestions for lunch box sandwiches:

1. Butter both slices of bread.

2. Soggy fillings do not go travelling.

B. McCutcheon

3. Keep strong flavors at home.

4. Have generous fillings but be sure they do not ooze out.

5. Do not include in the sandwich itself — tomatoes, lettuce, celery or other vegetables that wilt. Wrap them separately in wax paper.

6. Do not forget the seasonings either in the sandwich filling or in small containers to sprinkle on raw vegetables.

7. Complete the picture with carrot or celery sticks, cucumber slices, turnip cubes, lettuce or cabbage wedges.

8. To make sandwiches roll easily, roll the bread with a rolling pin before buttering.

Suggestions For Fillings: Blend one-quarter cup of peanut butter with half a cup of cottage cheese. Spread on rye or whole wheat bread, then sprinkle with crumbled crisp bacon.

Pineapple Peanut Butter Filling: ¾ cup peanut butter; 1/3 cup crushed pineapple; 3 slices crisp bacon (crushed fine); 3 tbsp. cream. Blend peanut butter thoroughly with cream. Add remaining ingredients and blend lightly but thoroughly.

Mix chopped olives or walnuts with cream cheese or cottage cheese.

Beef cooked and ground is good with chopped onion, chili sauce and salad dressing.

Mix tuna or salmon, salad dressing, lemon juice or vinegar, grated onion or chives.

If you are faced with the problem of providing a quantity of substantial sandwiches, here is an economical solution. Put two to three pounds of bologna and a medium onion through the food chopper. Mix to a spreading consistency with a ten-ounce can of tomato soup.

For a more expensive version use ham or luncheon meat with cream of mushroom or cream of celery soup.

Many more suggestions for fillings and sandwich spreads are to be found in the pamphlet "Lunch Boxes and Hot School Lunches". Write or call in for your free copy.

Red Cross Water Safety Department Conducts Swimming Lessons For 150

LAC LA BICHE — Inclement weather marred the plans made for the water demonstrations to be given at the close of the "Learn to Swim" campaign. The seven weeks' course, the first ever held in Lac la Biche, was conducted by Neil Procter of the Red Cross water safety department. The total enrollment for the course, which ran from July 4 to August 19, was 150. Of this number, 25 were beginners; 40 juniors; 9 intermediates and the remainder were young people and adults striving to improve their swimming and diving ability. One hundred attended the entire course with others missing a few lessons because of illness or being on holiday.

Sunday, August 21, was the date set for the closing exercises and presentation of awards. However, the day was cool and windy, resulting in the lake being too rough for the demonstrations.

Since an important baseball game was being played that afternoon between Lac la Biche and the Edmonton Truckers, with a large crowd on hand for the occasion at the Lac la Biche ball park, the presentation of crests and cards to those who had participated in the swimming course was made during intermissions.

Representatives from the Home and School Association, Canadian Legion, Lions Club, Women's Institute and the school division board assisted in presenting the awards.

H. Lobay, chairman of the recreational committee, was in charge of the program. He extended thanks to Mr. Procter on behalf of the parents for the efficient way the course had been handled.

Being a community project, a number of clubs and individuals co-operated wholeheartedly, with gratifying results. The use of the verandah at the Legion Hut where dressing rooms were constructed was greatly appreciated. These rooms were supervised each day by parents of children taking the course.

Many boys and girls and adults as well have not only learned to swim but have learned valuable lessons in water safety and artificial respiration through the course. Plans are already going ahead for the 1961 "Learn to Swim" campaign.

Magistrate Won't Wait For Lawyers

Magistrate J. W. McCulla issued a warning that his court is not going to stand for defence counsel not showing up after a trial date has been set. The Crown has objected to adjournments because this results in a backlog of cases and crowded dockets at a later date.

Magistrate McCulla gave one man a remand and warned him that his trial would be proceeded with on a set date regardless of whether his defence counsel was present.

Alberta's chief inspector of jails, E. E. Buchanan, says the jail population is high for this time of year but is not a record high.

He said there is some crowding at the Fort Saskatchewan jail where the capacity has been decreased by nearly 100 because the eight dormitories are being renovated. He said that normally, 400 prisoners can be accommodated and the number now lodged is slightly less than that figure.

He said the prisoners are being accommodated by putting two beds in single cells.

22 Service Clubs To Lend Hand In United Campaign

The heads of Edmonton's 22 service clubs decided to lend their support to the United Community Fund drive in October for over $1,000,000 to assist 44 voluntary agencies in the city.

Mayor Elmer Roper called the service club representatives and United Community Fund officials to a meeting which decided that all members of the clubs would be invited to attend a mammoth meeting probably in the Macdonald Hotel October 3 to become more acquainted with the purpose of the UCF.

The meeting last week was told that Edmonton is second from the bottom in contributions per capita. The contributions amounted to $1.62 per person last year compared with over six dollars in the city of Toronto which was at the top of the contributions list.

The UCF replaces the Community Chest and 16 other campaigns which were conducted last year to raise funds.
